The Library of Tomorrow Committee held their meeting on October 18th from 6:00-8:00 pm at Memorial Hall. Bradd Brown and Marcello Arwani from OPN Architects were in attendance to present design ideas for each of the two sites under consideration for the new Dallas Center library. They presented three different design configurations for the Mound Park site and four for the former lumberyard site. Posters for each were displayed on the walls and a time was given for committee members and those in the audience to view and discuss them. Then a period of twenty minutes of public question and comment was held, during which Mr. Brown and Mr. Arwani answered questions and listened to comments from the public. Following the public comment period, the committee began their work of discussing the design aspects of the proposals for both sites. At the end of their discussion, the committee agreed on one of the designs for each site to be further refined by the architects, with various "tweaks" and ideas for each also requested. At the November 15th meeting, Mr. Brown and his team will present their refined design concept for each site. The meeting will again be from 6:00-8:00 pm at Memorial Hall with the same format. We are excited as we begin to see the vision of a new, expanded library take shape!

To commemorate their dad's 80th birthday earlier this summer, the children of Bill Ellerman (Mark Ellerman, Lori Thomas, and Carol Reynolds) worked with the Tree Board to identify a location within the city parks where a tree could be donated and planted in Bill's honor. On October 12th a beautiful northern red oak tree was planted on the east side of Memorial Park near the walking path.
